World War II dog tags find their way home

By Kate Anslinger

When Patrick Donovan came across a pair of old military dog tags, he set out on a mission to return them to their owner.

According to Donovan, in 1995, the dog tags had been given to him by a friend with a name similar to the one that had been inscribed on the dog tags, George L. Wey. After tucking them away for over twenty years, Donovan discovered them while cleaning out a drawer. He then brought the Navy WWII tags to local Vietnam Veteran, Richard Honan, who was happy to help.

Alongside a photo of the dog tags, Honan shared a Facebook post asking for help in finding George Wey, hoping to reunite the important piece of history with any living family members. The power of Facebook came through and it didn't take long for Honan to find his answer. A friend of a friend connect-

OUR Opinions

THERE ARE MANY HEROES IN THE BATTLE AGAINST COVID-19

The current crisis in which we find ourselves has been compared to a war.

But instead of an opposing army, our enemy is a novel virus that is 1/900th the width of a human hair and that can be transmitted in ways that are both stealthily insidious and ruthlessly efficient.

As with any battle, it is the soldiers on the front lines who are doing the hard fighting and bearing the heavy burden of loss.

In this case, the army responding to take on COVID-19 consists of our first and second-level responders -- the police officers, firefighters, EMTs, nurses, doctors, and other health care and emergency workers -- as well as the truckers, grocery store and pharmacy clerks, utility company employees, municipal employees, and the countless others whose jobs have been deemed "essential" in order that their fellow Americans can maintain some semblance of normalcy.

Although these heroes perform many disparate tasks, the one thing that they have in common is that they literally are putting their lives, as well as the safety of their loved ones, on the line by exposing themselves to possible infection when they deal with any member of the public.

For our first and second-level responders, the danger has been particularly acute. The tragic stories making the headlines about nurses and doctors who have died because of exposure to COVID-19 have cast into stark reality the very real, life-and-death battle that these heroic Americans are facing every minute of every day that they are on the job.

Thanks to a level of unpreparedness by our nation that is nothing less than shocking -- from the lack of available test kits that could have identified those first cases that ensnared so many unsuspecting victims, to the scarcity of necessary protective and life-saving equipment (masks, gowns, and ventilators) -- our first and second responders have been left defenseless in their battle against this onslaught.

As one emergency room nurse in New York aptly put it, "We are being asked to fight a war without any ammunition."

We know we join with our readers in thanking all of our heroes for their selfless service to our nation and upon whose continued devotion to duty our very survival is dependent.

THIS WILL BE A LONG HAUL

It has become evident to everyone that the effort to hold back COVID-19 is not conducive of either an easy or a quick fix.

This is going to be a long and difficult ordeal that will test the fabric of our nation, both collectively and individually.

No one among us is immune to the effects of this plague. It will reach into every corner and crevasse of society, regardless of age, gender, fame, or wealth.

The $2 trillion relief bill that Congress approved last week is just the beginning of what promises to be the unlimited spending of vast sums in order to provide all Americans, from the biggest corporations to individual citizens, the means by which they can make it through to the other side of this pandemic, however long that may take.

With almost all of the country essentially quarantined in place, these additional, enormous government outlays will be the only available option to ensure that no American goes hungry and to save hundreds of thousands of businesses, both big and small, from disappearing forever.

Unlimited government spending to achieve these ends also will be necessary to prevent our society from descending into a state of total anarchy.

LETTER to the Editor

Yellow Daylilies on Berm.

ON THE REDESIGN AT FRENCH SQUARE

Dear Editor,

In response to some inaccurate reported comments from our Town Manager Austin Faison, during last week's remote Town Council meeting on WCAT, the following will set the record straight. Of late, many residents have asked, or called me, about the status of the upcoming project and what will happen to the trees.

To correct Mr. Faison's comment to Anita regarding the age of the remaining trees in French Square, the central Maple Tree was initially planted by the late Lewis Winter, when he worked -- for over 40 years -- for the DPW, and later as Tree Warden. This hefty and healthy Maple tree is about 75 years old, and a statuesque example of this type. It was also the only tree in the old park incorporated into the new design of the Square.

The two healthy and graceful side trees are Red Jade Crabapple trees, which are over 35 years old, still healthy, flowering annually, and providing a vibrant, colorful lower-scale relief to the park. One tree was planted in the memory of John & Doris Sullivan by their children; the other crabapple was donated by Mildred Jennings.

The distinctive, handsome White Birch tree at the back of the Park is the 2nd tree donated by the DiMento family in memory of Mr. & Mrs. Capezza; the first birch having succumbed to a borer disease. This white birch, about 25 years old now, is an living asset of shade, color and inspiration to many people.

These trees, as I discussed with DPW's Steve Calla, would be excessively costly to remove and relocate; the big maple alone being at least $60,000. If there are residents who would be willing to underwrite the removal and relocation of the smaller crabapples (with no guarantee of survival), they should make their interests known NOW, to either the Town Manager, or better yet, Mr. Calla.

The flagpole, originally donated by the Winthrop Yacht Club, will soon be removed and relocated at a later date, with much help from (& kudos to) the DPW. Further, (prior to current alerts), many of the perennials plants, bulbs, shrubs and some small trees have been dug up and relocated to other areas nearby, with hands-on volunteer-resident help. More about other items saved from French Square will follow once all reclamation has been completed.

Please see some pictures of last Spring's colorful displays of Nature. Originally planted long ago by the Beautification Comm., these displays will no longer be seen for quite some time at French Square (unless replaced in the new design).

Hospital is Full

CHA Everett doctor tells America ‘It just happened all at once’

By Seth Daniel

A young attending physician at the CHA Everett hospital on Monday gave a peek to the entire country as to what’s happening in the city’s local hospital, and it was shocking and difficult news.

Dr. Erin Beaumont is an attending physician at the CHA Everett Emergency Room, and last week she kept a video diary from Monday, March 23, to Sunday, March 29, about her shifts in the ER on hospital hill. On Monday night, portions of her diary were shown on the ABC national news, and she goes through what she describes as waiting for the inevitable, to worrying about her personal safety to getting deluged with patients early on Sunday.

“At one point this evening, we just got overwhelmed,” she said on her video diary around 2:30 a.m. on Sunday. “It all happened at once – ambulance after ambulance. Our Intensive Care Units are full, our floors are full and the ER is full.”

The diary starts with her on Tuesday afternoon getting ready to go into her shift, noting that the ICU had been full the previous day. After that shift, she talks intimately about a patient that is her age who had been admitted to the hospital with breathing problems and was presumed to be positive for COVID-19.

“He is my age, a healthy person who I admitted because I felt he was COVID-19 positive due to his labored breathing,” she said. “It’s heartbreaking though and hard because he is my age and young and healthy. I really hope we don’t see more and more like this.”

That next day, she reported he was in the ICU getting treatment.

On Thursday, things had progressed, but the waiting game was on.

“We’re just waiting and waiting and waiting for the inevitable increases in patients that we know is going to happen,” she said. “It eats at you...and the prospect of this country being open by Easter...is ridiculous and dangerous.”

On Friday, she talks about being worried as to whether there is enough equipment for her.

“My mom asked if I had enough PPE for myself and the answer is that I don’t know,” she said. “The question comes about where do you draw the line between protecting yourself and helping your patients...I do have asthma and I worry if I get sick I won’t do well.”

Her next entry that aired showed her overwhelmed around 2:30 a.m. on Sunday, saying they had been overwhelmed by a surge of patients.

Dr. Erin Beaumont, an attending physician at CHA Everett, shared a video diary with ABC National news on Monday, noting that they hit a surge over the weekend and were overwhelmed with patients young and old.

“It happened all at once – ambulance after ambulance,” she said.

ed Honan to George’s son, Roger Wey, who now lives in Oak Bluffs on Martha’s Vineyard.

“I called Roger and explained who I was and why I was calling,” said Honan, who mailed the tags to Roger’s home. “He was very happy to hear from me. He really enjoyed hearing about all the help I received in trying to track him down and he was looking forward to receiving his father’s dog tags.”

In a time when people around the world are faced with uncertainty, the small gesture offered hope and happiness to all parties involved.

“For Mr. Honan to go through the trouble he went through in order for my family to receive the dog tags, we are so very grateful,” said Roger Wey, who received them on Monday afternoon.

Captain George Lee Wey was in the United States Navy from 1941 to 1945. When World War II began, Wey volunteered for military service and was commissioned an officer in the U.S. Navy’s newly formed Construction Brigade, the SeaBees. After completing officer training, the unit he was assigned to was given the task of constructing the U.S. Naval Base in Bermuda. Having spent a year and a half in Bermuda, Wey’s unit was shipped to the Pacific Theatre in preparation for the invasion of the Philippines. When U.S. troops landed on Leyte Island and before the end of hostilities, his unit constructed an airfield and port facilities while under constant harassment by the enemy. Prior to Japan’s surrender, Wey’s unit was preparing for the Allied invasion of mainland Japan.

After World War II, Wey returned to Boston and was chosen to be the chief engineer of the Boston Port Authority, now the Massachusetts Port Authority. During his tenure with the Boston Port Authority, Wey implemented and supervised the construction of new shipping facilities within Boston’s inner harbor. In the early 1960s he left the port authority and was appointed director of transportation planning for the commonwealth of Massachusetts. He was instrumental in preventing the implementation of the inner belt highway which would have been disruptive to the environment and the surrounding urban communities.

Upon reaching retirement age, Wey left the public sector and sold the family home in Winthrop to build a house on Martha’s Vineyard. With the completion of his home, he became restless with the desire to do something more with his life. At the age of 71 he formed G.L. Engineering Consultants. He remained active in this pursuit until he was 94.

communities, our businesses, and our residents by easing burdens related to local permitting, extending the state’s tax deadline and giving restaurants more business opportunities,” said Speaker DeLeo (D – Winthrop). “Thank you to Chair Michlewitz and Chair O’Day for their leadership on these important issues.”

“Through this trying time, I am proud that the House is enacting policies that will have a direct positive impact on our residents, communities and local businesses,” said Representative RoseLee Vincent (D-Revere). “I thank Speaker DeLeo and Chairman Michlewitz for bringing forth this legislation, which I am thrilled to support and happy to say will make this difficult time a little easier for everyone in our great Commonwealth.”

The legislation would extend the individual state tax filing and payment deadline from April 15 to July 15.

The legislation includes the following provisions.

- Permits establishments licensed to sell alcohol for on-premises consumption to sell wine and beer via delivery and take-out provided the wine or beer is sold in the same transaction as a purchase of food and in a sealed container.
- Modifies local permitting processes, extending municipal tax deadlines, and allowing municipalities to extend property tax exemptions and deferrals.
- Allows municipalities to activate qualified workers by suspending the cap on hours and compensation for certain retired employees for hours worked during the state of emergency.

“This relief package will give administrative and economic relief to our restaurants, our cities and towns, and to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth,” said Representative Aaron Michlewitz, Co-Chair of the Joint Committee on Ways & Means (D-Boston). “As we continue to face the day to day effects of COVID-19, it is vital that we do all that we can to offer assistance to those in need.”

“The bill has several provisions that give towns and municipalities the flexibility they need to allow for extending time frames for town meetings and assessing some kind of temporary leniency with paying taxes and late fees,” said Representative O’Day, Co-Chair of the Joint Committee on Municipalities and Regional Government (D-West Boylston). “I applaud the many adjustments that are addressed in this bill during these very trying times.”

The bill will now go to the Senate.

— In Loving Memory of — Mary Kate Floyd

April 6, 2010 – April 6, 2020

Our mom was a 17yr. old immigrant from Ireland who came to this country to become a nurse. She married a U.S. Naval Officer and had ten children. She worked full time as a very busy mother and nurse. Mom’s life was dedicated to family, faith and friends never wanting anything for herself. We all remember mom’s happiest day was Christmas. She would have everyone packed in the house enjoying one of her dinners presenting a cake singing happy birthday to Jesus.

*We will always love and miss our mom everyday with her faith and unconditional love continually filling all our hearts!
Enjoy your cup of tea in heaven.

Office of Economic Empowerment launches digital financial resources amid COVID-19 outbreak

The Massachusetts State Treasurer’s Office of Economic Empowerment has launched a new digital tool for residents in Massachusetts experiencing financial changes due to the COVID-19 outbreak. With the goal of providing relevant financial education for families, the Office of Economic Empowerment created a new page on Mass.gov with timely free resources available to the general public.

The page, HYPERLINK “<https://www.mass.gov/ma-financial-resources-for-covid-19>” At “_blank” <https://www.mass.gov/ma-financial-resources-for-covid-19>, features state-of-the-art financial education tools designed by Everfi, an education technology company. The page also includes critical resources on identifying scams and fraud during this time, directions to file for unemployment, and much more. The Office of Economic Empowerment is committed to updating the page regularly with new materials as they become available.

“The COVID-19 outbreak has had an impact on all of Massachusetts, so it is important that we provide support during this unprecedented time,” said State Treasurer Deb Goldberg, “This website is designed to offer resources that will assist everyone with everyday life challenges.”

The Office of Economic Empowerment is dedicated to providing financial education for residents of Massachusetts. In 2017, the Office launched MyFinancialLifeMA.org, a first-of-its-kind website providing money management strategies and tools that can help guide users through each stage of life.

On day one of becoming Treasurer, Goldberg created the Office of Economic Empowerment (OEE), led by a deputy treasurer, with the deliberate goal of implementing a range of economic empowerment initiatives that include closing the gender wage gap, increasing access to financial education, improving college affordability, and investing in STEM careers and education.

Housing Court standing orders will bar new eviction cases through April 21

By Seth Daniel

Though it is an unintended consequence of the state court system trying to promote social distancing and health, there will also be an added protection for tenants affected by the COVID-19 response who are in fear of being evicted from their homes for not being able to pay rent.

April 1 has been circled on the calendar of many homes for the past three weeks since the bottom fell out of the world economy, and with such job and income loss – it left a lot of folks wondering how they would pay rent at the first of the month, that being the first rental payment due since the outbreak.

Housing Court Chief Justice Tim Sullivan and Deputy Court Administrator Benjamin Adeyinka said this week they have issued a Housing Court standing order through April 21 that will allow only emergency cases to come before them, and those do not include the typical summary process evictions.

“The answer as to whether we are taking those cases is no – we are not taking the garden variety eviction cases until after April 21,” said Chief Justice Sullivan. “The only actions we’re hearing are emergency conditions and they do not include the garden variety eviction cases. Only emergency cases are being heard, and so eviction cases are being suspended presently.”

That order really doesn’t have a lot to do with protecting people from being evicted. In fact, the standing order spells out that the order is to prevent the spread of the COVID-19 virus.

“Consistent with the Trial Court’s goal in slowing the spread of the virus, and considering the recommendations by the Center for Disease Control (CDC) and from state health officials, the Housing Court’s aim during this time is twofold: first, where practicable, to reduce the number of people who come to each courthouse where Housing Court business is conducted; and second to promote ‘social distancing,’ thereby minimizing the risk of exposure to court staff and litigants.”

That has, however, stopped evictions at a time when people also need help staying in their homes.

Across all the Housing Courts – which have expanded in the last year across the state – case filings have gone down dramatically because of the order and the inability to appear in court unless an absolute emergency. Filings statewide in Housing Court were down 63 percent two weeks ago, and were down 68 percent last week.

“We think the message has been received loud and clear by the general public,” said Chief Justice Sullivan. “The emergencies we’re doing with telephonic hearings... Still, we want to make sure they fully understand that despite the access to the building, we’re still accessible. They can call us.”

Right now, the typical Eastern Division Housing Court session in Chelsea – which serves Chelsea and Revere once a week – will be suspended for a period of time. Operations for the Eastern Division have been fully moved to the Edward Brooke Courthouse, which has been closed recently.

For those in Everett, typically they had sessions in Woburn for Housing Court, those are also suspended. The headquarters for those operations now are in Salem or Lawrence, but again only for emergencies.

Adeyinka said they cannot take a position on evictions or protections at the court, but they are encouraging communication between all parties.

“We do encourage individuals in this time to exercise common sense and communicate – landlords with tenants and tenants with landlords,” he said. “We’ve found anecdotally that large landlords have taken measures... We’ve found some of the larger landlords have made that contact. We can’t support or offer any advice though.”

Chief Justice Sullivan said a key item is the state Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) standing order that reinforced the order from Housing Court. That order calls on all local housing authorities to allow forbearance of rent on subsidized tenancy. He said that is an important precedent and helpful to those tenants.

“If someone feels they have their back against the wall, whether a landlord or a tenant, they should contact the court’s hotline,” he said.

It is also important to note that any default judgements entered between March 1 and April 21 will be vacated.

Sullivan and Adeyinka said they have Housing Specialists still working diligently who can offer advice on how to access rental programs like the Residential Assistance for Families in Transition (RAFT). They also said Housing Specialists are bi-lingual in Spanish, and interpreters can be patched in on an advanced conference call line that can handle up to 20 people at once.

“We don’t want language to be a barrier,” Adeyinka said. “We do have the ability to conference in an interpreter.”

Chief Justice Sullivan added the attorney for a day program is also available virtually for those who need it, and they are working with several organizations to have that available by telephone or online.

“We are here to help even though the building is physically closed,” he said.

Sullivan added the situation and the times are like nothing he has seen, and that has justified the measures that have been taken in Housing Court.

“I agree with is a unique time we’re in,” he said. “I’ve never experienced anything like it in my 60 years. I can’t remember anything being more disruptive than this pandemic.”

Consumers facing financial hardships due to COVID-19 urged to contact local bank

The Massachusetts Bankers Association urged consumers who are facing financial hardships due to the COVID-19 pandemic to contact their financial institution for assistance. Local banks throughout the Commonwealth have pledged to work with their customers – individuals and businesses – to mitigate the financial impact of the current health crisis.

“We strongly encourage anyone who is unable to make a payment on their loan, needs access to funds in a certificate of deposit or other relief to contact their financial institution for options to help them through this unprecedented situation,” said Daniel J. Forte, MBA President & CEO. “Local banks are ready and willing to help during these challenging times, but it is important that you reach out as soon as possible.”

Most local banks have already announced programs to assist consumers. For example, Greenfield Cooperative Bank is offering a “payment holiday” for residential and commercial loan customers; Berkshire Bank has established special relief programs for the LGBTQ and minority-owned business communities while Rockland Trust Company, Eastern Bank, Bank of America and many others have announced significant initiatives to support local residents and small businesses. MBA has created a COVID-19 Resource page on our website with additional information. We encourage you to visit www.massbankers.org.

In addition to relief on mortgages and other loans, banks are working with customers who may need access to funds in Certificates of Deposit (CDs), waiving fees for certain products or transactions, and increasing daily debit or ATM limits where appropriate. We anticipate that additional programs will be developed in the coming days and weeks to assist individuals and businesses as Congress considers a major economic stimulus package in Washington, D.C.

It is also important that consumers beware of scams and fraud, which tend to increase in uncertain times. MBA reminds consumers that the safest place for money is in their bank, where all accounts are insured up to $250,000. Many Massachusetts banks also have excess insurance to protect your funds. Large cash withdrawals are uninsured and at risk for loss; 95% of all transactions can be done on mobile/online banking, debit/credit cards or at an ATM, without the health risks of in-lobby visits.

“These are challenging times for Massachusetts families and businesses and local banks are doing our part to help ease the financial burden,” Forte said.

Massachusetts Bar Examination to be postponed until the fall

The Supreme Judicial Court and the Board of Bar Examiners today announced that, due to the ongoing public health emergency arising from the COVID-19 pandemic, the Massachusetts bar examination will not be administered on July 28 and July 29, 2020 as previously scheduled. The bar exam has been postponed until fall, on dates to be determined.

The Board of Bar Examiners, in consultation with the Supreme Judicial Court, will continue to closely monitor public health and safety guidelines, including prohibitions against large gatherings, related to the COVID-19 pandemic. In the event that limitations on large gatherings continue to interfere with a fall administration of the Massachusetts bar examination, alternative means for testing of applicants for Massachusetts bar admission will be devised and announced.

The Massachusetts Board of Bar Examiners (BBE) is established by G.L. c. 221 §§35 & 36 to evaluate the qualifications of persons seeking admission to the bar of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Baker extends stay-at-home advisory, closure of non-essential businesses until May 4

By Lauren Bennett

As the coronavirus outbreak continues to develop, Governor Charlie Baker continues to update the public with new announcements.

After President Trump over the weekend announced the extension of the federal guidelines for social distancing until April 30, Governor Baker on Tuesday announced an extension of his previous executive order requiring the closure of all non-essential businesses as well as the stay-at-home advisory until May 4. The orders were previously set to end on April 7. “This order also extends the 10 person limit on social gatherings until May 4 as well,” the governor said.

The state will also put out an updated list of businesses and organizations that will continue to operate during this period of time, which can be found at mass.gov/covid19.

“These actions will improve our ability to mitigate the spread of COVID-19 and the impact the surge has on our healthcare system,” Baker said.

The governor said he recognizes the “high cost” this has on small businesses and on residents who have to stay away from their loved ones for even longer.

“If we can limit face-to-face, person-to-person contact now, we can slow the spread and get back to work as soon as safely as we can,” he said.

Additionally, the governor said that hotels, motels, and short term rentals like Airbnbs are to be used “for limited purposes only”—ones that serve “direct efforts related to the fight against COVID-19,” which includes nurses, doctors, workers part of the essential business community, and Massachusetts residents “who have been otherwise displaced.”

Baker said that restaurants may continue providing food for takeout and delivery only, and stressed the importance of social distancing when outside and inside grocery stores and pharmacies.

“The next couple of weeks are going to be critical in this battle,” Baker said. “People need to play their part.”

He thanked all the workers on the front lines, including nurses, doctors, first responders, public sector workers, the National Guard, and essential workers like grocery store employees. “The state is filled with remarkable people and remarkable communities,” he said.

Baker also talked about the 13 confirmed deaths at the Solders’ Home in Holyoke, six of which have been officially attributed to COVID-19.

Baker said that in the short term, a primary focus of the state will be on the residents of the Solders’ Home in Holyoke, and assured that the state “will get to the bottom of it.”

On March 30, the governor also announced actions that would increase the health care workforce in Massachusetts, including expediting licensing for certain health care workers and initiatives to recruit volunteer medical professionals. Health care professionals who are licensed in other states or have allowed their Massachusetts licenses to expire within the past 10 years while in good standing can received expedited licenses to help out in hospitals.

Additionally, the Baker-Polito Administration’s COVID-19 Response Command Center is working to create dedicated facilities for people who are infected with the virus but are stable enough to not be in the hospital. This will free up hospital beds for those who need more critical care.

Baker also spoke about the federal relief package passed by Congress last week, calling it “a lot of good news.” He said that states are still waiting on guidance from the federal government about how to “implement and distribute these funds.”

Additionally, “our administration is committed to getting the resources to people who need them,” Baker said. Updates will be posted on mass.gov.

Baker said that the state continues to look for personal protective equipment (PPE) through a variety of different supply chains, and the national stockpile did send additional supplies over the weekend. He added that there is a “crucial need” for blood donations right now as well.

The surge in cases in Massachusetts has been calculated to start somewhere between April 7 and April 17, Baker said.

“For the most part people are doing a good job” of social distancing, he added stressing the importance of doing so when going outside.

“We are about to enter what will be the most difficult period associated with this virus,” Baker said on Tuesday, adding that there is “no doubt in my mind... that you will all perform above and beyond.”

Mass. Democratic Party chair to seek approval from State Committee to not hold annual convention

Today, the Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Party, Gus Bickford, with the support of Senator Ed Markey and Congressman Joe Kennedy III, is announcing that he will seek approval from the Democratic State Committee to not hold a state convention in 2020 due to the coronavirus pandemic.

“While it is unfortunate that the current circumstances do not allow for our annual gathering of Democrats, this is the right decision for the Party to make,” said Gus Bickford, Chair of the Massachusetts Democratic Party. “Our duty to protect one another, to protect our friends, family, neighbors and strangers, requires that we all make changes to the way we live. While these changes require that we not hold a convention this year, they do not mean that Democratic activism has slowed. I am heartened by the creative ways Democratic campaigns and activists have adapted their strategies and the ways in which they continue to push our Democratic message, reach out to Massachusetts voters, and provide comfort during this uncertain time. I am grateful to the leadership of Senator Markey and Congressman Kennedy, who have each agreed that not holding a convention is the right thing to do.”

The Markey and Kennedy campaigns have agreed that Senator Markey would win the convention and Congressman Joe Kennedy would surpass the 15% threshold.

Winthrop’s Democratic State Committeeman Valentino Capobianco said, “While It is unfortunate, I believe this is the right call. Nothing is more important than the health and safety of our fellow citizens. We can continue the work of talking to voters through phone calls and digital platforms. It is important that we remain a unified party committed to defeating Donald Trump in November.”

Upon adoption of this recommendation, the Chair of the Party will send a letter to Secretary of the Commonwealth William F. Galvin, requesting that he place the names of both Senator Markey and Congressman Kennedy on the Democratic Primary ballot for United States Senate.

Democratic Party officials did examine alternative ways to conduct its Convention. These alternatives present their own challenges, as well as concerns about equity and consistency.

The Democratic State Committee will consider this recommendation at its virtual meeting on April 4th. Should this recommendation be adopted, the 102 local caucuses that did not take place prior to the suspension of caucuses on March 10 will not occur this year.

Joint Statement from John Walsh, Campaign Manager for U.S. Senator Ed Markey and Nick Clements, Campaign Manager for Congressman Joe Kennedy:

“The Massachusetts Democratic Party has been responsive and responsible in each of its decisions during this difficult time, prioritizing the protection of the health and safety of all involved. On behalf of the Markey and Kennedy campaigns, we support the solution that the party has proposed.”

COVID-19 could exacerbate problem gambling

By Laura Plummer

March was Problem Gambling Awareness Month. At least it was supposed to be. The month-long campaign understandably took a back burner to a more pressing public health issue—the novel coronavirus pandemic. However, the two are not unrelated. Recovery advocates believe COVID-19 has the potential to worsen problem gambling and could even create new problem gamblers.

Also known as compulsive gambling, gambling addiction and gambling disorder, problem gambling is characterized by an obsession with gambling and an inability to stop despite negative consequences. It can result in the loss of money, career, relationships and reputation, and can lead to mental health issues such as anxiety and depression. The National Council on Problem Gambling (NCPG) estimates that as many as 10 million Americans struggle with their gambling behavior, costing the government $7 billion per year.

Groups dedicated to raising awareness of this issue organized events throughout March at locations across the country—events that were scrapped as states issued ever-stricter social distancing guidelines. The health cost of essentially cancelling Problem Gambling Awareness Month in the U.S. is immeasurable. In the wake of the cancellations, healthcare agencies and recovery advocates scrambled to get vital information to vulnerable individuals and mental health professionals.

According to the American Gaming Association, 95 percent of commercial casinos in the country have closed their doors, including Everett’s Encore Boston Resort. Horse and greyhound racing has been shut down and major sporting events cancelled. One would think this would equal a reduction in gambling. But just like Americans found ways to drink during Prohibition, compulsive gamblers are finding ways to place bets.

In past weeks, online gambling has exploded. Casino-style games like slot machines and poker have upped their advertising, hoping to lure in home-bound bettors. These games can be highly addictive. Online gambling isn’t subject to the same spending limits as in-person gambling venues and players can spend thousands of dollars in a matter of minutes without any oversight.

Social isolation fuels addictions of all kinds, and gambling addiction is no exception. More Americans find themselves at home on the internet than ever and those who already frequented the rooms of online casinos may be drawn there with greater regularity now that going to the gym and visiting with friends is no longer possible.

While it may seem counterintuitive, a report in the Journal of Gambling Studies found that Americans gamble more, not less, during times of financial trouble. An increasing number of Americans have lost their jobs and some will turn to gambling to make ends meet. For many, placing a bet or two will be a one-time attempt to pad their wallets while waiting for their stimulus checks. For others, it could set in motion a spiral of destructive behavior.

A national crisis always highlights the weakest points of our social fabric. But Americans have a long history of overcoming adversity and, as the saying goes, emerging “stronger at the broken places.” As gambling moves online, so too have mental health professionals. Many counselors are now offering remote video sessions with clients. The NCPG website even has a database of counselors specializing in gambling addiction (ncpgambling.org/help-treatment/).

City, EBNHC, HYM team up for COVID-19 testing for First Responders at Suffolk Downs on Saturday

By John Lynds

A coordinated effort between the City of Boston, the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center (EBNHC), local healthcare providers and the owner of Suffolk Downs to test as many of the city's First Responders for COVID-19 occurred Saturday at Suffolk Downs.

The drive-thru testing site at the HYM Investment Group owned Suffolk Downs was only open to qualified EMTs, firefighters and police officers who were first screened to make sure they met the state criteria for testing. If testing was required, then drive-thru visits were scheduled by appointment only.

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues, the city's EMTs, police and firefighters are some of the frontline workers battling the virus. The site was not open to the public.

"This is an important first step to keeping our first responders healthy," said Boston Mayor Martin Walsh. "Boston's first responders are on the front lines of this public health crisis, and we will continue to do everything we can as a City to keep all residents safe and healthy."

The operation of this testing facility was led by the Boston Public Health Commission and the EBNHC.

The Health Center's President and CEO, Manny Lopes, worked closely with Walsh and the Boston Public Health Commission, where he serves as Board Chair.

"Although this was not an easy lift the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center is proud to come to the aid of the City and to our first responders," said Lopes. "We have been here for Boston for 50 years, and our staff continues to show their commitment to our City and local communities even in the face of this terrible crisis."

Lopes went on to thank Walsh and the City of Boston, the BPHC, HYM Investment Group and Suffolk Downs, Quest Diagnostics, and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts for helping EBNHC get this testing site started.

"We are going to need lots of partners moving ahead," said Lopes.

For more information, please visit www.ebnhc.org and visit www.boston.gov/news/coronavirus-disease-covid-19-boston or www.ebnhc.org.

On Saturday the City of Boston, the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center (EBNHC), local healthcare providers and HYM Investment Group teamed up to test the city's First Responders at Suffolk Downs for COVID-19. The drive-thru testing site at Suffolk Downs was only open to qualified EMTs, firefighters and police officers.

EBNHC President and CEO Manny Lopes talks with staff during a trial run of the COVID-19 testing site at Suffolk Downs for First Responders Saturday.

A car pulls up to the drive-thru testing site as EBNHC staff prepares.

FRESH & LOCAL

Just Add an Egg

By Penny & Ed Cherubino

Eggs are back in style. More places offer you the option to “add an egg” (for an additional price) on some menu items. A current favorite seems to be a soft-cooked, in-the-shell egg with a gooey, runny yolk and set white. This is a 7-8 minute egg when made by the traditional boiled egg method.

Another way to achieve this degree of doneness is with a sous vide circulator which lets you bring the egg to a specific temperature and hold it for a reasonable amount of time. You also have the option of stopping the cooking by removing the eggs to an ice bath, refrigerating them to use as needed, and then reheating them to serving temperature. That perfect temperature is, of course, a matter of taste but for many cooks, it is around 145 degrees.

This cooking method produces a healthier alternative since you have not added saturated fat to the egg. We’ve learned that it’s not the eggs you eat that are a problem for your cholesterol levels, but the way you cook them and what you eat with them.

The Cholesterol Myth

Francisco Lopez-Jimenez, M.D. responding to a question about eggs and cholesterol on the Mayo Clinic website writes, “Chicken eggs are an affordable source of protein and other nutrients. They’re also naturally high in cholesterol. But the cholesterol in eggs doesn’t seem to raise cholesterol levels the way other cholesterol-containing foods do, such as trans fats and saturated fats.” He goes on to point out that eggs may help prevent some types of strokes and are protective of our eyes helping to prevent macular degeneration.

Anthony Komaroff, MD answering a similar question for the Harvard Health website explains, “The evidence that cholesterol in one egg a day is safe for most people comes from huge studies-many conducted here at Harvard Medical School-that have followed hundreds of thousands of people over decades.”

He goes on to point out that what you eat with eggs is a more important factor in heart disease.

Our favorite egg salad is made with reduced-fat yogurt, served on whole-grain bread, with a vegetable on the side.

Many of us eat eggs with foods that are high in saturated and trans fats like butter, cheese, bacon, ham, white bread, and pastry.

Switch Your Egg Extras

Ed’s favorite egg dish is a French-style omelet. A few years ago Penny began cooking those in olive oil with just a smear of truffle butter across the top as she lands it on the serving dish. That switch to a healthier fat really makes a difference. The amount of truffle butter we use is so small that we keep it in the freezer and shave off a tiny dollop when needed.

We are more likely to have a vegetable or salad as a side dish for an egg-based meal. For example, we love egg salad but make it with reduced-fat yogurt rather than mayonnaise. We extend the salad with chopped celery, scallions and fennel and then serve it on a slice of whole-grain bread.

Of course, like most folks, we occasionally indulge in a typical plate of eggs with all the usual fatty sides. However, we do this away from home so those foods high in saturated fats are not around the house to tempt us. As with any indulgence, we try to offset it with healthy eating.

The next time you’re looking to add a healthy nutritious source of protein to your salad, grain bowl or sandwich, just add an egg.
