Lime Bikes return — with a kick, fare increase

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

It's only been in town for two years and Lime Bike is already changing things up a little bit. This year announce-ing that there will be no "pedal-only" bicycles, only electric assisted bicycles (ebikes) and the pricing structure has changed making a ride cost more. This year it's $1 to initiate the ride and then it's 15

Winthrop High graduates 156

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

It was a perfect night for a graduation of one of the larger classes in recent Winthrop High School history with 156 graduates. Friends and family filled the Viking gym.

Graduates were also joined by local officials, the School Committee and Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo.

Principal Matt Crombie said the impact the teachers at Winthrop High School have on the students is immeasurable.

"The teachers are the backbone of Winthrop High School," he said.

He then went into a story about a rubber chicken, complete with sound effects, who had been confiscated from a student and now has become the office mascot.

Crombie wanted to share with the students in case they were feeling a little nervous.

"I won't bring it up again," he joke.

"Class of 2019 you're such a successful group of students with such diversity, drive and dedication," he said, while explaining that he held students late on their last day to complete a survey of experiences.

"Seventy-eight percent of you started school in the first grade at the Fort Banks," he said. "One word that showed up a lot was the word 'determined'."

The Winthrop Marketplace celebrates 20 years in business

By Domenic DeMasi

"In all aisles of the Marketplace you could hear how happy the patrons are to finally have a market open in town", begins Catherine Elcik's article in the June 10, 1999 issue of the Winthrop Sun-Transcript about the opening day of Winthrop Marketplace. As the Winthrop Marketplace prepares to celebrate its twentieth anniversary, the delight of the store's customers has not settled down. "I love his meats, I love his produce, the convenience of being in Winthrop. It is nice and small and he has great weekly specials", said Robin Rice, a loyal Winthrop Marketplace customer since the store first opened for business in June 1999.

It is really quite remarkable how a small, single, independent grocery store has not just survived, but thrived, for so long while being surrounded by the supermarkets of many corporate competitors like Market Basket, Price Rite, and Stop & Shop. Store manager Kevin Miccichi, who has been with the Winthrop Marketplace family since day one, has said one of the primary reasons has been "being able to change with the times on a personal touch". This has included taking special orders for items the store does not carry and stocking organic items as consumer demand for them has grown in recent years. "People who shop completed much earlier than in the past," he said. "We also met with many more department heads than in the past."

He added that the budget was based on the House of Representatives state budget which would give the town an additional $178,476 in state aid. Of that amount the school department received $113,726.

Of all the expenses the town faces one of the largest is the payment for regional dispatch. In the beginning four communities were supposed to be in it but only Revere and Winthrop are in the service and pay a hefty price. In fiscal year 2017 when the regional dispatch began the cost to Winthrop was $192,600. Now in fiscal year 2020 the town has a fee of $450,000.

"Regional dispatch is a good idea and both chiefs favor it. Grants have helped offset some of the cost but we are concerned about annual growth," Wynne said.

He also noted that this year is the first the ferry is not requesting any money from the town, it has found other funding sources, but he has concerns about its future and whether or not the town should be running a ferry business.

Town Landing for people using the ferry.

Last year it was $1 to activate the ride and then there were no charges for the first 30 minutes. The first 30 minutes were free.

"It's a big difference from last year, parents especially need to know. It's $10 for an hour," said Tanji Cifuni, community development for Winthrop.

Lime Bike told the Town Council a few weeks ago that their surveys found that the ebikes were more desirable than the standard pedal bicycle. Lime is also working with the MBTA for a permit at Orient Heights and Beachmont.

Unlike the 100 bikes used in Winthrop last year, this year there will only be 50 ebikes only.

As eighth-graders you were extremely determined to be in the high school, this determination showed on the stage, the classroom and the playing field.

"But it was 75 percent of you who indicted 'volunteerism' as your word to describe the class," he said. "In the past five years it's made a difference in our school. You named school and community events that you participated in that were designed to help others in need. Your biggest impact on our school was you stepping up and helping others, influencing and inspiring your peers to do the same."

“Your determination, success, and impact at Winthrop High School wouldn’t be possible if you didn’t have great teachers along the way,” Crombie said. “The surveys showed that support from your family and friends has been essential. When asked who was the most influential person in your life, 87 percent of you indicated it was someone in your immediately family.”

The most important question in the survey was “what meaningful address would you give an incoming ninth grader – the common theme from your responses was you would encourage them to take risks and make the most of every opportunity, Crombie said.

“The most common phrase was ‘just be yourself,’ ‘do everything’ and ‘be kind’. You already know what is truly important.

Speeches

Valedictorian

Camila Miranda-Llovera

Before I begin, I'd just like to say a quick gracias to Señor for not only being a great teacher for three years, but for being a great mentor. You've been there to help with conjugations, to make me spend $4,000 by going to the UK, as well as to unlock a monstrosly competitive side of me through playing Survivor in your class every week. Gracias por todo.

I'd like to think of this all, as a finale to a show. We find out who sits on the Iron Throne, Michael Scott comes back for one last inappropriate joke, we find out how Ted met their mother, all the loose ends get tied up. It's been a long ride, thirteen seasons worth of material, even though for two seasons we had to re-introduce the character asbestos when we went to the middle school, again. But growing up in Winthrop, we've been in a position where we've all grown up with our cast-mates--a blessing and a curse because now we have so much to blackmail each other with, like how Jared, whose speech we just heard, had a crush on me in the second grade because I taught him chess. Or of me making a fool of myself with a hypnotist at the senior overnight. Stuff like that. It's been nice because we've been surrounded in this little bubble of familiarity, but now it's time to break out into our solo careers, create our spin-off shows. It's a blessing in the sense that you can see how much we've progressed throughout the years or to see how things have stayed constant. For example, we still need supervision to use the bathrooms and are told to stop touching each other, so some things remain unchanged from Kindergarten. It'll be strange because for so long, we've all just suffered together, the glue of disliking school holding us up as a complete unit, contractually obligated to come by our producer: the Law. Because that is our role as teenagers, we wake up before the sun is up and come back after it has set, we cry when we go outside for gym class (Mr. Cadigan, in another life, I was your star quarterback), and we fail to acquire a seat in the lunchroom on the first day in the new school.

It becomes easy to assume the role of "angsty teen who wants to get out of dodge" and you wish you could just binge-watch school to reach the end, not caring that Netflix is judging you by asking if you're still watching.

But there's one moment that's been residing within me this entire year. In the finale to my favorite show, "The Office," Andy Bernard says "I wish there were a way to know you were in the good old days, before you've actually left them". Whether we realized it or not, we have been in the good ole' days. I know it was hard to realize that after our fourth year in the middle school, with the make-shift guidance office in the cafeteria, the fake windows, and the occasional burst pipe. It was hard to realize when our silly-band cartels were busted by Mr. Gill, or when the pizza sticks ran out in the lunch-line. It's been hard to realize even now in our last days on set as the smell of dissected dogfish permeates throughout the school and as the exasperated student walks down two flights of stairs after finding that the bathrooms are locked, again. But there will be times when we look back and wish that all this had been documented The Office style, because we once did live in a world without Brandosed-its. We will look back on our times and remember how often we had to cross dress for Ms. Indelicato's class. Every time we hear a cough, we will think of Mrs. Spiriti, whenever we have a bad dream, we will think of YKB. In staying with this whole show theme, every memory, every little blip to our past will be a rerun of the "Days of Our Lives" in Winthrop High School. Michael Scott said it best with "it was the best of times, it was the awesomest of times".

Our production crew has been amazing. Countless teachers, parents, friends that have made this show worthy of an emmy. My own directors, I mean parents, have supported me through anything and everything, despite the gray hairs I've given them. There's been my brother, who has helped me with everything ranging from my ABC's to my calculus homework. There's been my coaches, Mac and D'Amico, who are two of the greatest people you could ever meet and my favorite running buddies, Mac who called it that I'd be up here in the fourth grade, and D'Amico who believed in me when I didn't believe in myself. There's been my friends of course who have dragged me out of my house and have made doing repeat 400s bearable. You guys are all listed in the credits of every episode.

We're leaving with a nice legacy behind us, distinguished enough for our own Hollywood walk of fame. Not only are we the last class to graduate in the 2010s, but we are one of the biggest classes, testing what the term "max capacity" really means when it comes to our class sizes, and as Jared already highlighted in our season finale recap, we've been pretty great. Despite our eagerness to get out of here, to kick-start our spin-offs and sign our solo contracts where "student debt" is listed in the fine print, Winthrop High School will forever remain to call us back home, or however long it takes before Winthrop is underwater. Because however begrudgingly you came everyday, however spectacular your acting was in feigning interest in your subjects, however many times you complained about it, this was your home. While today is the first of many lasts, it's a "to be continued" rather than a full on stop, an end credit after a Marvel movie. I often consider myself blessed for my time here, because to borrow from the quote behind me, we could have gone to any other school in the country for four years, but instead we came to Winthrop High School, and became vikings for life. Thank you and congrats to the Class of 2019.

Thank you, Mr. Skane! You have truly been an inspiration to me over the last four years. You were always someone who I knew I could count on at any time, from the day I first interviewed with you in eighth grade to my last few projects that we worked on this past summer. I know that I speak for myself and Beth when I say that you made our high school experience so much better; entertaining us with your knowledge of our mascot and passing on the same passion that you have for helping others. So once again, thank you.

Now, before I begin with one long story of how we all ended up here today and where we are going in the future, I ask that we give a round of applause for the faculty, the families, and all of us graduates walking across stage tonight.

My favorite subject has always been math, so if you wouldn't mind, I'm going to conduct my speech in the only way I feel comfortable... With numbers. 222445, the school-- Sorry wrong number. Let me start over. 16,848,000. The number of seconds we spent in high school together. Shout out to Mr. "Sink Fire" Drew DiMento for doing that quick math in his senior quote. Over that span, we have truly been through everything together. We learned the basics of knowledge. The ABCdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz with Mr. Roan, the times tables, and how to silently walk through the hallways like so. We have even traveled around the world together too: Washington, D.C. with Mr. Breau and Mr. Mace-ro, the British Isles with Señor and Ms. Jardon, and soon, the Bahamas, all...by...ourselves. And finally, the most important, are the memories we have shared with everyone here today in their caps and gowns.

Which leads me to my next number...13. In the beautifully created yearbook and hopefully in our brains are thirteen years of fun, exciting, and unforgettable experiences spent with each other and the faculty in the Winthrop School System. The Fort Banks, the Cummings, the Old Middle School, and now this high school, has served as many of our second homes thus far in our lives. Whether that be rehearsing a play with Mrs. Calinda until ten thirty at night, coming in early for one of Mr. Davis' famous morning reviews, or simply seeking extra help and advice from some of your favorite teachers and coaches, there is no doubt that this place and these people to my left do not have a special place in your hearts.

Maybe you will always remember the times playing Survivor with Señor, each game becoming more intense than the next. Maybe you will remember Mr. Davis and his persistence to convince you that math really is fun and exciting. Or perhaps you will never forget needing Ms. Indelicato and Ms. Jardon's help to pronounce Mrs. Daigneault's name on the first day of sophomore year, only to end up bothering her in her room everyday about college, chemistry, and yearbook. I think that last one may have just been me, but whichever faculty member it is, there will surely be something about them that you will never forget and will always cherish in the future.

And thanks to those relationships with our faculty, we have successfully reached the end of those 13 years and 16,848,000 seconds in high school. But there is one final number that means the most as to why we are all here today. 156. That is the number of students in the Class of 2019 AKA, the best class ever. Whether it is sports, academics, art, or drama, we have most definitely left a tremendous impact on our school in about every facet imaginable. As Mr. Beck would put it, we went about our time in high school with true Viking pride, grit, and strength. We have helped lead our teams to NEC titles in both Boys Hockey and Boys Lacrosse. We have expended an immense amount of effort day in and day out toward our academics which will allow us to continue our education many years into the future.

We have displayed our artwork in various exhibits throughout the Boston area, winning multiple awards, and have starred in videos for the second-most popular youtuber in the world, Brando Martinez. Finally, we have dominated the stage time and time again, becoming METG Drama Festival State Champions in both 2017 and 2018. Once again, let me reiterate... BEST CLASS EVER.

Now before I depart the stage, I would like to thank a couple of other people that have made my own high school experience, even more special. First, my family. I would not have achieved anything leading up to this moment had it not been for all of you. This... me standing here, is because of you. I want to especially thank you for driving me to Syracuse at 3 in the morning just so I could attend my information session the following day. I love you all very very much. And lastly, to my former basketball coach Ignacio Oyola, who always had confidence in me from the first time I stepped on the court freshman year. You recognized all of my hard work and effort that I put in during each practice and game, and rewarded me with playing time on Varsity, something that I never had the opportunity to do once you left. Thank you very much.

To effectively conclude my speech, and thus my time here at Winthrop High School, I would like to introduce one last number. An infinite series, if you will. (Sorry Andy and Camila.) It starts with 0 and will increase from here on out, representing the start of a new clock and a new chapter in all of our lives. Some of us will be moving on to further our education elsewhere, where we will see larger classes, unfamiliar challenges, and new people. While it may be less seldom for myself to exchange late-night phone calls with Camila about homework and our upcoming tests, or play basketball for hours on end with Riley down the courts, there will always be one special period of time that we will have to reminisce on for the rest of our lives. And that is... those 16,848,000 seconds, 13 years, and 155 lifelong friends that we all appreciate and are here to celebrate today. Thank you, and good luck to everyone in their future endeavors.

Class President

Ava Bertino

Hello faculty, staff, parents and guardians, friends, and family. At this point in the night, everyone in here is getting a little restless. I know my grandparents are probably complaining about the temperature in here, my mom is biting her fingernails, praying that I'll do fine and that I'm okay right now, and some of you are starving. Some people in the class of 2019 are letting out a sigh of relief that they didn't trip up or down the stage while receiving their diploma. Some faces are visibly very emotional and some are wishing I would just talk a little bit faster. But I get the honor of reminding you why we are all here. All of our hard work comes down to this very moment. So, as that goes, I would like to ask for your attention for the next few minutes as I take you back in time.

It starts with Kindergarten. Most of us met at this age, and some of us met along the way. You might make some new friends, you don't know much about school. You like snack time or playing with the wood chips at recess. Elementary school. You learn cursive, or what might be cursive, but now one will ever know. What a metamorphic rock is. Your Vel-cro turns to laces and it feels like you lose a new tooth every week. You start to learn about yourself-who you are and what you like-without anyone having to tell you.

Middle school. Braces get slapped on and you're overwhelmed by the amount of people who ask you to smile and reveal them. You go to the talent show, or you participate in the talent show. You may do intramurals, play on the middle school hockey team, or live for your Saturday morning basketball game. You attend the geography bee. Field day is the 12-year-old Olympics. And then-you blink and it's your first day of eighth grade. Our eighth-grade experience was very unique. We were not only housed with high schoolers... but we were expected to act like them too. We rose to this challenge. You take your first high school test. You try and stay on the right side of the hall. The Moving On dance and DC come around, and you are on top of the world. You might even leave a kid at Canobie Lake. And then, it's time for real high school.

You make new friends, and you grow close with people you never thought that you would.

Your hobbies change. Your backpack, gives you sever back pain. And then your world turns upside down when you enter the new school, your sophomore year. You like it-and quickly feels like home. Many changes come along the way, that might even change the course of your life. You might take the SAT, and then you might realize that you never want to hear the word SAT again. People come in and out of your life, either by choice or by fate. You might fall in love. You learn what meiosis means. Or not. You kick the football through the field goal kick at Pep Rally, or not. You win two METG state championship awards. You witness WHS history as two new members enter the 1K-basketball point list. You may become a cheerleading, hockey, or lacrosse NEC champ.

There is truly nothing like your senior year. From the moment you walked into high school to this very moment, you are not the same person you used to be. You inevitably changed with the growth of your emotions and feelings toward life. I sat down to write this speech and the one, re-occurring emotion I couldn't shake was how quickly this time went. So I leave you with this. Our lives are so unpredictable. You might meet a foreign exchange student from Sweden and become best friends. You might get in to that school that you never thought you could. You may get the chance to date and share your life with your first grade crush, like me. Our lives are so unpredictable. Cherish every moment and remember that people remember how you made them feel. Kindness is infectious. Be open to new experiences and don't fault others who want experiences different from yours. Use the time ahead of you wisely to set yourself up for a good, happy life. The power is ours and remember - the only one responsible for your happiness is you. I am so proud of the people we've become, the laughs we shared, and the memories we have made that will forever be ours. I'm proud that this class is mine. I am proud to be a Viking and to share this beautiful town with you all. It is what bonds us. You are my home.

I want to personally thank the Class of 2019 for being the brightest, kindest and funniest people to grow alongside with. Serving as your President was an honor and a pleasure. You have the next four years of your life to discover your strengths and weakness and I cannot wait to see how all of you turn out. Leading the way with me the past few years, are my class officers and advisors. We did it! A very special thank you goes out to Cindy Silva and Mrs. Nicole Cipriano for the incredible organization, dedication and time you both have given this class. We have built the Class of 2019 together, and a special shout out to Russell who has wanted me to do this since freshman year. Mr. Crombie-thank you for letting me have my own ideas and supporting me every step of the way. I would be remiss if I did not mention Olivia, Gabby, Emma, Kirsten, Sofie and Steph, who are my best friends and have had my back through everything. And lastly is my family. My grandparents, Nana, Noanie, and both Papa's have been there for everything to support me. Even if it was a three-hour recital, and I was in one number. Thank you to my crazy aunts and uncles who keep me on track and make me laugh consistently. My baby brother, Michael, who really isn't a baby anymore - who is always there to hang out with me and make me smile. And lastly, my parents. My dad is one of the smartest people I know. I can count on him for anything, at any time, anywhere. He has shown me what it takes to be strong and to remain kind to everyone you meet. And my mom. My best friend. I truly would not be who I am without her by my side. She is my role model and guides me through. I love you all immensely.

Alright, Class of 2019, it's time. Remember this is our time to celebrate one last time, together. Would you all please move your tassels from the right to the left and on the countdown from three, throw your caps in the air. 3...2...1...

Mark Amatucci of Winthrop receives Teamsters Local 25 Scholarship

Teamsters Local 25 awarded college scholarships worth $60,000 to 30 high school students at its May 19 membership meeting, held at the Local 25 Union Hall. Mark Amatucci, of Winthrop, was among the recipients. A recent graduate of Winthrop High School, Mark will attend the University of Massachusetts at Amherst this fall. Mark is the son of Anthony Amatucci, a Teamsters Local 25 member that works at UPS Watertown. “These students are the future of our nation,” said Teamsters Local 25 President Sean M. O’Brien. “They are smart, engaged and an example of all that is good in the world. If the achievements and goals they have had so far is any indication, we can expect nothing but greatness from the future generation.”

President O’Brien was joined by Massachusetts Congresswoman Lori Trahan (MA-3), who helped present the student scholarships.

“I am so proud of the 30 recipients of the Teamsters Local 25 Scholarships. I grew up in a union household, and know first-hand how important this kind of support can be to families working hard to make ends meet so they can build a better life for themselves and their children. Supporting one another is what union membership is all about. I look forward to these students continuing to grow and make a positive impact in their communities,” said Trahan.

Since 2006, Teamsters Local 25 has awarded nearly $600,000 in scholarship funds. All students are children or grandchildren of Local 25 members or retirees.

Teamsters Local 25 is the largest Teamsters Union in New England, representing more than 12,000 workers.

NO FARMER’S MARKET THIS YEAR

According to the Winthrop Farmer’s Market website, “The Winthrop Farmers Market (WFM) will suspend market operations for the 2019 season.

Several factors contributed to this decision including the planned construction in Winthrop Center, changes in customer and vendor interests, as well as the need to revitalize the WFM volunteer base.

“We are very excited about the plans for French Square,” says WFM Board President, Donna Sears. “We appreciated that the town asked for our input and took into consideration WFM activities when completing landscape design. We hope that when construction is finished it will be an even better setup for the market as well as help attract new vendors and customers.”

Sarah Oosten, owner of La Petite Boutique and WFM Vice President, echoed the Board’s president, “We’ve had markets at other locations, but French Square has worked the best in terms of drawing customers and facilitating vendor setup. We are very grateful to all of our loyal customers and, of course, the vendors that come back year after year.”

Devoted WFM customers have also expressed a desire for additional market dates, vendors and more activities. “Donna and the Board work hard to bring something new to each market but we are limited in resources. Many of our vendors and customers don’t realize that the planning and operation is 100% volunteer run, all of whom have full-time jobs. We’re doing this because we believe this market has an important role in our community,” says Marcie Moline, the WFM Board Secretary.

The need to revitalize the WFM volunteer membership is another reason for the hiatus. The Board hopes that 2019 can be used to re-group and identify other Winthrop residents and stakeholders who would be interested in the long-term sustainability of the market. Those interested in volunteer opportunities should reach out through their website, WinthropFarmersMarket.com, or through their social media pages.

The Winthrop Farmers Market is a producer-only market and 501(c)3 nonprofit committed to providing the local community with access to fresh organic produce from independent farmers and to showcase the unique foods and crafts of artists and small businesses through the organization of seasonal markets which foster an inclusive environment and vitality.

WHS SPORTS ROUNDUP

GIRLS LACROSSE WINS TOURNEY OPENER, PLAYS AT MANCHESTER TODAY

The Winthrop High girls lacrosse team won the first-ever state tournament game in the program’s history with a scintillating 12-10 upset victory over St. Mary’s of Lynn this past Monday in the opening round of the Division 2 North Sectional of the MIAA tournament.

The triumph advances coach Ben Cimmino’s crew to the quarterfinals when they will travel to Manchester/Essex today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m.

The Lady Vikings are the 12th seed in the D-2 North among the 16 teams in the sectional with a 12-7 regular-season record. Manchester/Essex is the fourth seed and sported a 12-5 regular-season mark. Manchester handily defeated Lowell Catholic in its opening round contest, 15-2.

Winthrop came out on fire in its battle with St. Mary’s (which was the fifth seed in the D-2 North with a 16-4 record) taking an early lead and holding it for most of the game until St. Mary’s tied matters with about 10 minutes to play.

However, the Lady Vikings refused to buckle to the favored Lady Spartans and responded by netting two go-ahead goals to close it out.

“Emma Soch, our back-up goalie, started for us and played an incredible game,” said Cimmino. “Our defense made countless stops and our offense controlled the tempo of the game. Every girl stepped up and made plays for us.”

If the Lady Vikings defeat Manchester, they will advance to the semifinals to face the winner of the match-up between top-seeded Ipswich v. eighth-seeded Austin Prep.

WHS BOYS TENNIS WINS TOURNEY OPENER

The Winthrop High boys tennis team, which made school history with a best-ever 13-3 record in program history, added to their laurels with a 5-0 shutout victory over Arlington Catholic on Monday on the WHS courts in an opening round contest of the Division 3 North Sectional of the MIAA state team tennis tournament.

The victory marked only the second tourney triumph in the WHS boys program’s history, the first having come four years ago with a win over Swampscott.

The Vikings entered the tourney as the fifth seed

WE WIN! : Winthrop players react to the first post-season girls lacrosse win in program history, a 12-10 victory over St. Mary’s in the opening round of the MIAA Division 2 North Girls lacrosse tournament.

among the 13 teams in the D-3 North, while Arlington Catholic (7-7 in the regular season) was the 12th seed.

Leading the way for Winthrop was its top player, Corey Cherico, who blanked his Arlington Catholic counterpart at first singles in shutout fashion, 6-0, 6-0.

Chris Finn dispatched his AC rival at second singles, 6-1, 6-2, and Rilind Bytyqi likewise won in straight sets at third singles, 6-3, 6-4.

The Viking first doubles duo of Sam Yarrow & Kevin Dorr triumphed in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, as did the second doubles tandem of Augie Cherico and Alessio Narco, 6-0, 6-2.

Coach Marie Finn’s squad now advances to the quarterfinal round where they will meet fourth-seeded Lynnfield (13-3), which blanked Wilmington 5-0 in its opening round match.

The winner will advance to the semifinals to face the victor of the matchup between top-seed Austin Prep and eighth-seeded Weston.

WHS SOFTBALL, BASEBALL TEAMS PLAY IN TOURNERY TODAY

The Winthrop High baseball and softball teams will swing into MIAA state tournament action this afternoon (Thursday).

Coach Frank DeMarco’s Viking baseball squad will make the long trek to Hadley Field in Lowell to take on Lowell Catholic. Winthrop (6-14 in the regular season) is the 11th seed among the 11 teams in the Division 4 North Sectional, while Lowell Catholic (13-7) is the sixth seed.

The winner of today’s contest will advance to face third-seeded Manchester/Essex (15-5), which had a first-round bye, at a place and date to be determined.

Coach Dave Guffey’s Lady Viking softball team will journey to Matignon for a preliminary round contest in the Division 3 North Sectional. Winthrop is the 22nd seed in the 22-team bracket (6-14 in the regular season), while Matignon (13-7) is the 11th seed in the D-3 North.

The winner will move onto the quarterfinal round to face sixth-seeded Tech Boston (11-4), which has a bye in the preliminary round, at Roberts Field on Saturday at 4:00.

BOYS LAX TEAM FALLS IN TOURNERY

The Winthrop High boys lacrosse team dropped its opening contest in the state tourney to Triton by a score of 10-4 on Monday afternoon at Miller Field.

Coach Brian Donnelly’s Vikings, who sported a near-perfect 17-1 record during the regular season en route to winning their first-ever Northeastern Conference South Division championship, were the fifth seed among the 16 teams in the Division 3 North Sectional of the MIAA state tournament. Triton was the 12th seed in the bracket with a 10-8 regular season mark.

DAN GILLIS ESTABLISHES HIS LEGACY IN WHS BASEBALL ANNALS

Winthrop High senior captain Dan Gillis put an exclamation point on his outstanding high school baseball career with a brilliant, 1-0 shutout victory over Peabody this past week.

Gillis allowed just four hits, while fanning four opponents and walking only one, to pick up the complete-game triumph.

“That performance completed what you could call a generational season for Dan,” said veteran WHS head coach Frank DeMarco.

Gillis was named to the first-team, All-NEC South team, becoming the first Winthrop player chosen under the new all star format. WHS sophomore David DiCicco, also received post-season accolades by being named an NEC all star.

“It is amazing that a 125-pound player -- although Dan would remind you that he is up 10 pounds over last year -- could put up the kind of numbers he has,” said DeMarco, noting that Gillis was 3-3 with a 3.05 ERA with seven starts, four complete games, and one shutout. Gillis recorded 37 strikeouts and allowed only 10 walks for the season.

“Dan also relieved in two other games, which means that he pitched in almost half our games,” DeMarco added.

Gillis also was a potent force at the plate and was a model of consistency. He finished the season with a .338 average and had a base hit in 19 of the Vikings’ 20 games this season.

“He started with a seven-game hitting streak and finished with a 12-game streak,” said DeMarco. “He was amazingly consistent. The last players to do that were Chris Carew, who had a 17-game hitting streak, and Vinny Eruzione who hit in 19 out of 20 games in 2007.”

Defensively, Gillis led the Viking fielders with a .936 fielding percentage.

“He also led the team in assists, which is kind of amazing given that he was the pitcher in nine of those games, yet led the team,” DeMarco added.

“The last Winthrop baseball players to be in this category of pitcher/hitter were the late Cory Collins, who hit .350 and was 6-1 as a pitcher, and Matt Moore, who hit .307 and was 5-2 as a pitcher,” said DeMarco. “This happened in the same year in 2007. It took 12 years to see this again and what makes Dan’s accomplishment so remarkable is that he did it for a team that finished 6-14, while the 2007 team was 14-6 and won the NEC title.”

Gillis will be furthering his education at Bentley University, where he hopes to continue his baseball career.

OBITUARIES

Michele Perigard MacEachern
Lifelong Catholic religious and musical educator

Michele Perigard MacEachern, 71, of North Miami Beach, Fla., passed from this life at her home on Wednesday, May 22 after a short illness. In her last few weeks, she was surrounded by family, friends and hospice caregivers. She is celebrated by her community and friends and family for a lifelong and dedicated career in education and church ministry providing years of service in religious instruction, theological study, tutoring, ESOL training and church liturgical music. Active for many years at St. Lawrence Catholic Church and School in North Miami Beach devoting endless energy for catechetical training within the Archdiocese of Miami, parish fundraising for the annual carnival and especially as music director/musician together with the parish choir leading worship services.

Prior to their move to North Miami Beach in 1990 with her husband, Joseph, Michele served as the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Director providing religious education training in several parishes in the Greater Boston area particularly at St. John the Evangelist Church in Winthrop as well as at St. John the Baptist Church in Peabody.

Michele leaves her husband, Joseph, 76, of North Miami Beach, Fla., older brother, Arthur, 72, of Brimfield, Mass., Brother Christopher, 64, of North Brunswick, New Jersey and younger sister, Danielle, 67, of North Fort Myers, Florida. Michele also leaves four nieces and nephews: Brigitte, Elise, Lauren and Evan, who with his wife, Danielle have presented Michele just recently with grand-niece Della Josette Perigard. Michele has numerous cousins in Connecticut, Florida and a large extended family of aunts, uncles, and second cousins in the province of Quebec, Canada.

Michele was born to Arthur and Yvette LaVallee Perigard on Oct. 19, 1947 at the Waterbury Hospital in Waterbury, Connecticut. She graduated from L'Ecole St. Anne Grammar School in Waterbury, Connecticut and spent a short time at Catholic High in Waterbury. After the family moved to Enfield, Conn. in October of 1961, Michele transferred to Our Lady of the Angels Academy in Enfield, Connecticut, an all-girls high school run by the Felician Sisters. This order of religious women is dedicated to a Franciscan way of life and Michele was always committed to the service and spirit of St. Francis of Assisi.

After graduation, Michele entered the Felician Sisters convent which was on the grounds of the high school. Michele continued her studies with the Felicians, earning her undergraduate degree from Trinity College in Washington, D.C. One of her assignments was teaching at a Catholic grammar school in Hempstead, N.Y. Michele, after great discernment, chose not to profess her final vows and began her lay ministry. She went on to earn a Master's Degree in Divinity from Boston University with a special emphasis in Systematic Theology and pursued other academic graduate degree studies.

During Michele's long career in church and music ministry she functioned at every level as a presenter at academic gatherings and conventions as well as being a tutor, mentor and sponsor to all who asked. Michele had the gift of enabling people to feel the joy of life. She had a deep belief that her calling was that of a Christian Servant reaching out to help others. Michele always enjoyed remarkable energy, drive and enthusiasm. She particularly took great joy in helping to provide music and spirit at church based worship services together with choir and community.

In later years, Michele was passionate about tutoring students studying English as a second language in Aventura, Fla. During her younger years, Michele was very gifted musically and played the piano, organ and guitar. While in high school, she began her music ministry as the organist at St. Martha's Church in Enfield, Conn., a privilege usually offered to adults. Her love and exuberance for church music led her to organizing pilgrimages from Boston to the Benedictine Monks of the Weston Priory in Weston, Vt.. The rich music and beautiful surroundings convinced Joseph and Michele to buy property and build a house there for retreats. Michele last visited the Weston Priory chapel on Veterans' Day Weekend, 2018, and spent time in silent prayer and meditation. It was to be her last visit.

A graveside service was held in the Belle Isle section of Winthrop Cemetery on June 4. Michele was memorialized and blessed by a priest from St. John the Evangelist Church in Winthrop. Family and friends shared with words of consolation and faith amidst music and song which was one of Michele's passions.

Winthrop would have special meaning for Michele for it was there that Joseph and Michele met one another for the first time quite by chance at St. John the Evangelist School, and where they were engaged, married on June 28, 1975, worked as teachers and in church ministry, lived with family and friends and celebrated one another for many years.

Memorial gifts in the name of Michele can be considered for the Felician Sisters of St. Felix, Felician Sisters Motherhouse, 1315 Enfield St., Enfield, CT. 06082.

OUR Opinions

SPEAKER DELEO PREPARES FOR THE FUTURE

Massachusetts House Speaker Robert DeLeo this week unveiled the details of the plan he announced last February that will provide $1.3 billion to combat the ever-increasing effects of climate change. Among the major aspects of the plan will be the awarding of grants to cities and towns across the state to encourage green energy initiatives and climate change resiliency efforts, which are particularly needed for our vulnerable coastal communities.

The grant program, called GreenWorks, would be funded by $1 billion in bonds and paid out over a decade. The program, to be run by the state Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs, will allow local governments to seek grants for a variety of projects that will focus on climate change preparedness and clean energy production in order to reduce carbon emissions.

The bill also would set aside an additional $295 million in state spending for energy infrastructure, including $100 million for municipal microgrid systems to increase the resiliency of the electricity grid and $125 million for electric vehicles in municipal fleets and regional transit authorities.

There no longer is any dispute that climate change is occurring and that our coastal communities, including the City of Boston, are ill-prepared at the present time to address the twin threats of rising sea levels and more powerful storms.

Speaker DeLeo's GreenWorks initiative represents a major step forward in protecting our vulnerable coastline, while at the same time creating jobs in the green energy and clean tech industries.

Given the urgency and pressing need to address the issue of climate change, which is occurring at an ever-accelerating pace, we urge our state senators to join with Speaker DeLeo and the Mass. House in presenting a bill for Gov. Charlie Baker's signature by the end of this year.

LETTER to the Editor

VANDALIZATION
CEMETERY

Dear Editor,

In 1930 my grandparents, Charles and Sarah Murphy, moved into a home in Winthrop on Waldemar Avenue. They lived there until their deaths in 1957 and 1964. My parents, Helen Murphy and Lawrence Kincaid married from that home in 1936. Unfortunately, my father passed away in 1942 when I was five years old. My mother lived in the Waldemar Ave home until her death in 2008 At the age of 96.

On Sunday May 26, my daughter Kathleen and I visited the Winthrop cemetery to plant flowers on the grave of these four family members.

On June 4, I was sent a picture of the grave site by a dear Winthrop friend. The plantings had been vandalized.

This letter is written in sadness, not in forgiveness or understanding. I do not understand why someone would commit such an act and some things in this world are unforgivable.

A Green New Deal of Action

By Jack Clarke

Massachusetts needs its own Green New Deal – but it needs to be a deal of action.

Although not a law but more a resolution expressing the will of the Congress on the necessity to address the climate crisis and economic inequality, the Green New Deal, filed by New York Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and our own Sen. Ed Markey, was killed by the Senate in a vote following no review and analysis by legislative staff, no expert testimony or committee hearings, and no floor debate. The message was clear: the U.S. Senate does not want to discuss the climate's breakdown. So we at the state level will.

The name harkens back to the New Deal and its social and economic reforms, and public works projects, undertaken by President Franklin Roosevelt in response to the Great Depression.

The Green New Deal echoes Roosevelt's economic stimuli incentives and adds plans for renewable energy and resource efficiency.

FDR's New Deal was not realized in one bill in one year, but became law through various pieces of legislation over the first three years of his first administration. Beacon Hill lawmakers should also develop an ambitious multi-year plan to meaningfully confront climate change, the most urgent threat of our lifetime, in their version of a Green New Deal – but it needs to be more than a good idea. And it needs to pass.

Although the national Green New Deal is admittedly a vision statement, the Massachusetts version should be a statutory set of requirements with goals, targets, and reasonable dates that move us forward in addressing the climate breakdown.

Our version should start with and include at a minimum, laws establishing:

- § Zero net carbon emissions, meaning Massachusetts emits only the carbon emissions that it can capture or re-absorb – by 2050.
- § An annual increase in the amount of clean energy that utilities are required to buy, leading to 100 percent renewables – by 2047.
- § Environmentally responsible development of 6,000 megawatts of offshore wind energy, and quickly scaling up from there. This is well beyond the 1,600 MW required now – by 2027.
- § A carbon fee: Massachusetts and eight other states, along with the District of Columbia, are presently participating in the Transportation Carbon Initiative that would cap regional transportation emissions and require fuel wholesalers to buy pollution permits for the fuels they sell. Revenues from the sale of the permits would then go back to states for investments in public transit, electric vehicles, bike lanes, and other initiatives to reduce carbon emissions in the transportation sector – by 2021. And if the regional approach fails, Massachusetts needs to be ready to go out on our own and pass a statewide carbon fee.

- § Improved solar options: allow net metering not just for Massachusetts homes but for all non-residential solar facilities to free up Bay State businesses and communities to build more solar projects, create more jobs, and allow for millions of dollars of investments – by 2021.
- § Create green jobs: Mobilize the academic and research assets of the Commonwealth to more fully contribute to the innovation economy and create more green jobs. This will require increased investments of private and state funds in Massachusetts' 114 colleges and universities to research and apply advanced technologies in the fields of deep-water offshore wind energy, solar, carbon capture and re-use, and long-term high-quantity battery storage. This investment in education and innovation would unleash clean energy jobs. Although there are 110,700 such jobs in the Commonwealth workforce today, it's still just 3 percent of Massachusetts employment. It needs to grow substantially – by 2021.

- § Environmental, social and economic justice principles should be embedded in all newly passed state laws whereby the power of communities of color, low-income, rural, indigenous, under-represented and non-English speaking residents in Massachusetts would be harnessed to help eradicate environmental racism and classism, to create healthy, and sustainable communities – by 2019.

The changes we experience today, such as stronger storms, accelerated sea-level rise, and intense heat are just the beginning of what should be expected.

There needs to be a sense of urgency on Beacon Hill when it comes to our climate emergency, especially as recent reports from the Inter-governmental Panel on Climate Change and the National Climate Assessment warn we have only 12 years to figure out a solution before things really start to fall apart.

For my grandchildren, six year old Haley and her five year old brother Jack, who will be teenagers in twelve years, it is time for lawmakers to act, and to act now.

GUEST OP-ED

Remembering Winthrop's Dick O'Connell

Winthrop native Dick O'Connell passed away in 2002, just two years before the Red Sox 86-year World Series drought ended.

It has been written that O'Connell benefitted from being a "classic outsider" in an organization marked by cronyism- Tom Yawkey's men.

In his youth, O'Connell starred on Winthrop's town baseball team. He then attended Boston College, graduating in 1937 and achieving a Masters Degree the following year. Along the way, like many Winthrop men, he worked as a longshoreman in the busy port of Boston.

O'Connell served in Naval Intelligence in World War 2, where he befriended renowned Boston sportscaster Jim Britt. With Britt's help, he joined the Red Sox organization in 1947 as head of the Lynn Red Sox of the New England League and found he had a knack for business.

After the NEL folded, O'Connell joined the Sox as "home secretary" in the early 50's and rose through the ranks. By 1960, he had achieved the title of "business manager".

By 1965, with the team losing 100 games and drawing less than 8,000 fans per game, Yawkey was disgusted and even considered moving the team. In a very positive move, he fired Pinky Higgins as GM and hired O'Connell.

With the help of improved scouting and some sound player moves, O'Connell's team shocked the baseball world with the Impossible Dream season just two years later.

Howard Bryant's excellent book Shut Out, which is an examination of racism on the Sox, extols O'Connell's abilities. "For the first time, the Red Sox were truly an integrated team that relied on players of all races to succeed. It was a by-product of his being able to develop talent without the specter of the old prejudices.

According to Bentley Athletic Director Bob DeFelice, a Winthrop product who played for the Red Sox organization for a few years, "O' Connell was great. He treated me like a superstar. It was beyond hospitality.

Despite another pennant in 1975, Dick was fired by Jean Yawkey soon after her husband's death in July 1976. She did not share her husband's opinion of him and wished to put personnel decisions in the hands of Haywood Sullivan and Buddy Leroux. The move did not help the team. However, not only did O'Connell build two pennant-winning clubs, but totally changed the Red Sox image. He was twice honored as Major League Baseball Executive of the Year and is a member of the Red Sox Hall of Fame.

ARTICLE 882 - STORM DAMAGE ON SHORE DRIVE IN 1909

Living in a New England seacoast community provides an exposure to possible property damage due to ocean storms, snow blizzards from the Midwest and the tail end of hurricanes from the Caribbean. When one looks back at the 50 or so major snow storms recorded from 1635 to date, the dozen or so large hurricanes since 1850 and the hundreds of lesser storms that have also descended on us, we are lucky not to have sustained more major damage. The photographs of wind and water damage from 1900 to date record the after effects of some of these storms. Today's "Then and Now" Article shows the damage at either end of Winthrop Shore Drive resulting from ocean storms. First, at the southern end of Shore Drive, picture #1 depicts how the buildings at the entrance to the Edward Rowe Snow footpath around the ocean side of Water Tower Hill appeared in 1914. Picture #2 reveals the damage sustained by these buildings during the Christmas 1909 major Snowstorm. If one then looks at the other end of Shore Drive where it intersects with Crest and Grovers Avenues, picture #3 depicts the seaside area as it appeared in 1914. Note the small "jog" in the seawall a short distance out as the surface area curves to the left to accommodate the Narrow Gauge Railroad tracks which passed under Grovers Avenue and then ran beside the Highlands (Dalrymple) School. These tracks then progressed on behind the current Doctors Building on to where the Highlands Station was located on the site of the present World War II Memorial Park/Playground and Crest Avenue parking lot. Picture #4 shows the damage sustained along the same stretch of seawall as a result of the 1931 storm. Note the metal poles that supported the wires installed in 1928 when the railroad was electrified. Again the small "jog" in the seawall is visible at the right. While some damage to buildings along Shore Drive did occur during these and other storms, most structures were repairable and are still with us today. Many efforts to minimize the erosion of our coastline during storms such as the construction of sea walls along Winthrop Shore Drive and several jetties protruding out into the ocean have been pursued. As a WPA project, during the depression, the "three sisters" off shore breakwaters were constructed in 1933 followed with the addition of two more in 1935 for a total of the five which are there today. In spite of these efforts we still experience some damage from time to time due to storms. Current activity to replace sand along the shore drive beach is in progress. Studies to provide further protection are ongoing and those interested in this effort should volunteer to become involved in these planning programs.

More than 2,000 students were also named to the Dean's List for the spring semester, which means more than 21 percent of the student body earned recognition on either the Dean's List or the President's List.

Of those on the President's List, 141 are freshmen, 177 are sophomores, 166 are juniors and 285 are seniors.

Among those named to the President's List:

here are familiar with us and have ties to us” he said, adding that “we have made a lot of donations to the town and we helped the community any way we could”, mentioning that the store has been involved with several community events like sponsoring the Winthrop Chamber of Commerce Day At The Beach and serving apple cider at the town’s Christmas tree-lighting.

Having been working as a deli clerk at Winthrop Marketplace for about a year now, I have noticed that Winthrop Marketplace is more than just a grocery store for local residents. Every day I see customers otherwise unknown to each other having spirited conversations on topics ranging from the news of the day to their favorite cold cuts. It is not uncommon that I witness friends who have not seen each other in some time bumping into each other at Winthrop Marketplace, of all places, and catching up, asking how their trip was or how their kids are doing in school. Clearly, the Winthrop Marketplace also serves as a friendly social space for the community where members can comfortably interact with each other.

It is also where they can interact with the employees and, of course, where the employees can interact with each other. “After awhile you get to learn about people’s families, their pets, and you get to joke around with everyone,” said Elizabeth McDuffee, a cashier who has been with the Winthrop Marketplace since 2016, when she was still a junior in high school. In fact, many of the Winthrop Marketplace’s employees are high school and college students. “We have given a lot of kids their first jobs here,” said Brian Macrina, another store manager who has been with Winthrop Marketplace since its inception, who recognizes the store’s youth employment program as another way the store gives back to the community. While many student employees eventually leave the Marketplace for other education or employment, a few have stuck around or have returned after long departures. Antonetta Adler, John Devlin, and Michael Miccichi (son of Kevin) are longtime employees who have all been with the Winthrop Marketplace since they were high school students, beginning in 2001, 2003, and 2006, respectively. Besides youth employment, the Winthrop Marketplace also prides itself as an equal opportunity employer as many employees with disabilities have come and gone over the years.

With all of this in mind, it should come as no surprise that the Winthrop Marketplace has stuck around and has stuck out in Winthrop. “It is a part of the community because it participates in the community. Marc is very generous to the community and gives back to the community”, said Lois Sullivan, another dedicated Winthrop Marketplace customer since 1999. Tracey Martucci, also shopping at the store since its beginning, said, “Marc is always welcoming, always engaging with his customers. You guys always have everything I need.” This kind of customer feedback may form part of the reason why the Winthrop Marketplace has been a recipient of the Retail Association Of Massachusetts New Business Of The Year Award in 2000 and American Dream Award in 2002, the Winthrop Chamber Of Commerce Business Of The Year Award in 2002, and the C&S Wholesale Grocers Community Service Of The Year Award in 2017.

Twenty years is a long time and the Winthrop Marketplace has big plans for its upcoming celebration during the week of June 6-13. The store’s recently installed new floor will be matched with twentieth anniversary banners hung from its walls and ceiling as well as special twentieth anniversary shirts for its employees. Customers will also have the pleasure of taking some free samples, participating in raffles for prizes, and taking advantage of the store’s 20th anniversary supersales on select products.

Catherine Elcik continued in her opening day article: “If the reactions of the first week are any indication, the Marketplace is in Winthrop to stay.” After 20 years the Winthrop Marketplace has not only confirmed Elcik’s prediction, but has also visibly left an indelible mark on Winthrop’s history through the customers it has served and the 50+ organizations it has contributed to throughout the past two decades. “I cannot thank the customers from Winthrop and the surrounding communities enough for their loyalty for the past 20 years,” said Marc Wallerice of the Winthrop Marketplace, adding “I enjoy coming to work everyday. Some are more challenging than others, but through it all it has been very rewarding and I wouldn’t change anything that has happened. And I can see in the next 20 years our team and our customers working hand in hand to make our company grow with the community.”

Winthrop Marketplace has been located at 35 Revere St., in Winthrop for the past 20 years.
